The "sustainability triangle" is always depicted resting on its base, with the tip sticking upwards. I wanted to knit a triangle shawl from sustainable yarn, where the pattern consists of triangles that stand on the top (so they are female triangles). To do this, I knitted triangles into the stockinette background with a center section in stockinette, knitted in garter stitch.

I did a crochet picot edge at the end to keep the shawl from curling too much and to give it some sturdyness. It is undoubtedly more suitable for a smaller woman; very cooling and smooth on the skin, and the colors are cheerful. Difficult to do justice in a photo.

Yarn: Rosários 4 Bio Bamboo Print

Cost of yarn: € 30,-- Hours? Difficult to say, I guess, 35 for the knitting and another 6 for the crochet edge
