Who are we?

The Israeli Forum for Environmental History (IFEH) is an inter-university forum, active since 2013. We bring together researchers from various disciplines such as Middle Eastern history, European history, legal history, historical geography, architecture and more. By conducting interdisciplinary discussions on environmental issues in different historical periods and places, we hope to enrich our research, challenge established ways of thinking and create new collaborations. By doing so, we aim to promote environmental history studies on Israel/Palestine and the Middle East, as well as to form a lively academic community in Israel for environmental historians.
